

MSNBC: Congressman Rothman "showed 'no vacancy' sign to Kaddafi in 2009"

Today, this segment ran on MSNBC's morning show, The Daily Rundown.

MSNBC: Congressman Rothman "showed 'no vacancy' sign to Kaddafi in 2009"

March 29, 2011

Savannah Guthrie:

"Well, let's do our trivia. We asked, which Member of Congress fought to keep Khaddafi from staying in his district in Englewood, New Jersey during the Libyan leader's visit to the U.N. in 2009? And the answer is...."

Chuck Todd:

"Steve Rothman, there in Northern New Jersey. Despite Khaddafi's best attempts, he was not allowed to pitch that Bedouin-style tent on the property owned by the Libyan government in Englewood, New Jersey. Of course, as we know, Khaddafi has a fear of heights."

Savannah Guthrie:

"Ah. Is that what it is?"

Chuck Todd:

"Apparently."

Savannah Guthrie:

"Okay."

Visit msnbc.com for breaking news, world news, and news about the economy