Washington, DC – On April 5, 2011, Congressman Steve Rothman (NJ-9) addressed the New Jersey State Building and Construction Trades Council Breakfast. The council thanked Congressman Rothman for fighting for workers' rights throughout his career in public service and for being a leading advocate for building and construction workers. The Congressman talked in strong support of workers' rights, including collective bargaining, throughout New Jersey and our country. He also spoke of the utmost importance of two key issues facing American laborers that some politicians want to eliminate: Davis-Bacon Laws and Project Labor Agreements (PLAs).
