Washington, DC – On November 3, 2011, Congressman Rothman (D-NJ), Co-Chairman of the Kurdish-American Caucus and a member of the House Appropriations Subcommittee on State and Foreign Operations, met with Baraham Salih, Prime Minister of the Iraqi-Kurdish Regional Government. Also present for their private conversation was Qubad Talabani, the Regional Government's Representative to the US, fellow caucus Co-Chairman Congressman Joe Wilson (R-SC), and several other members of Congress. They discussed the current situation in Iraq and the surrounding region, as well as the continuing importance of the relationship between the United States and the Kurdish people.
